Smart Unity

Intelligence always prevails over fanatical terrorism. America faces trying times—America will win regardless of antiwar sentiment. Why? Because the majority of Americans will unite against the terrorists—that smart unity will occur November 2008 (the General Election). Most Americans understand that we are involved in a fanatical war (only stupid fanatics blow themselves up). Historically, those wars have fail. More important (and I am hearing rumbles from Democrat candidates), we should not “cut and run” in Iraq. Note: The times are changing. (Remember George McGovern [an antiwar candidate]? He lost!)

America needs “civil leaders” and “journalists” that express “constructive (intelligent)” advice, guidance. Do “we” have any? Where are they? The First Amendment permits critique—speak your mind. (I strongly believe in the First.) But the First does not require the use of “intelligence”—anything goes even if it is dumber than dumb. We see it on TV and read it daily in newspapers and magazines: “partisan criticism without expressing intelligent solutions.” In the USA, any one can freely speak his or her mind regardless of talent or wisdom or constructive merit. Balancing political criticism (without constructive advice) with national security solutions, results in a dangerous scenario. Empty criticism emboldens the nutty enemy—they think we are plain vanilla stupid and that we will vote for a McGovern-style Democrat (that will open the flood gates for them). They are wrong. Americans are a smart unity—we are not dumb. Yes, Americans are smarter than the fanatic terrorists (brains vs. bombs). When the time comes, the smart unity will prevail—it always does. Intelligence will dominate the 2008 political campaign and election. This general election is important for the USA’s security. We must elect a savvy, strong president who will place the country on a campaign of strength and determination. WE THE PEOPLE understand the dangers that America faces from the nutty terrorists and will form a smart unity. We are in a religious confrontation where fanatics blow themselves up for unrealistic expectations. They are loco (crazy). The electorate must not descend to their stupid depths. The electorate must intelligently confirm the fight (in the Middle East, rather than in the States). Freedom must emerge victorious. If the American forces fail (now), our children and grandchildren will have to go to war or succumb to the fanatic’s will—that is, absurd at best.
